Canary Wharf - Description
Canary Wharf is the new financial centre located in London's East End. It is worth visiting this outstanding example of regeneration that provides a first level work, shopping and leisure environment. It is a showcase of many modern architectural styles located in the old surroundings of the docks. There are two large luxury shopping centers offering a wide range of products, and there are numerous bars and restaurants. Shops and most bars and restaurants are open seven days a week until late at night. The park, shopping and leisure facilities above the new Canary Wharf Crossrail station opened in May 2015. The Canary Wharf focal point is the tall white tower of Canary Wharf, which has 50 floors and is 235 metres above ground level. It was the tall building in the UK until The Shard overtook it in 2010. Around Canary Wharf Tower are grouped other tall buildings mainly the headquarters of housing banking. The development provides abundant, well-maintained green spaces and is surrounded by water with docks on three sides and the River Thames to the west. Canary Wharf - Shopping
Canary Wharf is home to two large shopping malls that offer a wide variety of products with stores that range from luxury brands such as Tiffany and Breitling, shops with well-known high street names and small designer boutiques. Most stores are open seven days a week until late at night. The main shopping mall stretches several hundred yards from the basement of the Waitrose anchor store in Churchill Place located east of the site. The shopping centre is located beneath Canary Wharf Tower and Canary Wharf DLR Station to Cabot Square in the west. The two commercial floors above the main mall run east to west from the tower east to the DLR station and then from the DLR station to western India Avenue. To in the south, and separated from the Main Canary

Wharf mall by canary wharf subway station, is Jubilee Place. This is another slightly smaller mall containing a boots chemist, a Waterstone bookstore and many designer brand stores. Canary Wharf - Food and drink, as well as restaurants inside malls, there are many restaurants and bars along the sides of the docks - for example: A Fisherman's Walk north of canary Wharf's main tower is located along the side of the pier: Brodies (cellar); The fine line (cellar); The Cat and the Canary Islands (sports pub); There are many food and watering holes in West India Quay On Thomson Reuters Plaza south of the tower: Carluccio's - an excellent chain Italian restaurant; Smollensky's - a chain meat restaurant; The Slug and Lettuce - a chain public house serving reasonable food; All Bar One - a chain public house serving good food; Overlooking Square Park, which is to the east of the tower, are many culinary establishments: Looking over the park from the west and down the ground floor is The Parlour, a bar and kitchen throughout the day. There is also an outdoor table tennis table and a beer garden. Next to Parlour and also looking east is a similar establishment called The Canteen which has a more restricted menu for traditional English tastes; Above The Parlour and The Canteen, and with splendid views over the park is the excellent Japanese restaurant Roka- Roka has small children's play facilities on a corner of the property, but this shouldn't leave you, as these facilities are well separated from the main dining area. The property does an excellent all that can be eaten buffet on Sundays; Next to Roka and overlooking the park is Wahaca, a Mexican restaurant that shares the same splendid views; Across the park, on the fourth floor above waitrose supermarket/department store and Reebok Sports Club is Plateau Restaurant. This restaurant has the most exceptional views of Canada Square Park. There are also a number of restaurants along the River Thames to the west. Among them are: Goucho - serves filets specially imported from Argentina; Camino - A quality Spanish tapas bar; Canary Wharf - Parks and gardens The parks and gardens of Canary Wharf house a wide range of plants set in innovatively designed landscapes with fountains, streams and modern artworks. East of Canary Wharf Tower is Canada Square Park, which is mainly grass surrounded by trees and flower beds, the park is home to a temporary ice skating rink each year in the winter months. South of Canada Square Park and above Canary Wharf Subway Station are Jubilee Gardens with trees, flower beds and winding walkways, streams and swimming pools. To the west of the Canary Wharf Tower is Cabot Square, with a large round fountain surrounded by formal planting, west of this landscaped avenue that moves away towards the River Thames and ends in a secluded circular garden near the river. Canary Wharf - Arts Canary Wharf hosts more than 100 art events each year. Currently on display at Canada Square Park (until May 10, 2012) is the Aeolus Wind Acoustic Pavilion (see image) which is an acoustic and interactive sculpture that came with the wind. It is made of nylon harp ropes attached to 310 polished stainless steel tubes that direct wind and sound to the center of the sculpture. The Banks and Green Stuffl must be getting pregnant by having to water the sedum mat on top of its 156-metre-high skyscraper with an ordinary garden hose, but that's what Barclays Bank does on the roof of its corporate headquarters shown here. Sedum plants (which occupy the small green mat shown in the center of the image) are so dry because the wind at this altitude dries all to a bone. Also note the small piles of stones on either side of the sedum mat These are intended as a habitat for any intrepid insect enough to achieve this high. Hmm - this is a serious for a small child and there is not much to eat apart from sedum. As part of the planning application the Barclays building obtained kudos to put these things in the - There is an environmental assessment methodology of the establishment of research of the building that gives points for this type of thing. I don't think they thought about it properly!
